

Green tunnels

Paths through vegetated 'tunnels' provide very green and distinct experiences because of the total enclosure and seclusion created by leaves and branches. Like cutting paths they provide contrasting walking experiences by enabling people to move between light and dark, warmth and cool, openness and enclosure.