

Grass, vegetated floors and meadow paths

Vegetation is a vulnerable surface in places of heavy public use. In less intensely used recreational places it is always desirable if management resources are available and climate allows. Paths can be created simply through grassland by using different mowing regimes.