

Water paths

Landscape architecture involves the design of linear waterbodies and the design of pathways adjacent to natural or constructed waterbodies. The following pages briefly illustrate the design considerations and potential of these water paths.