

THESIS MANUAL

CHAPTER 1

ORGANISATION OF THE THESIS

1.1 Definition of a Thesis

Thesis in this manual refers to a documented report of the process followed and the results of original research conducted by a student in fulfilment of the requirement for a graduate degree. The thesis should be presented in a manner that will reflect credit on the student, the faculty, and the University. The term thesis used throughout this manual refers to doctoral and master's theses and dissertations as well as bachelor degree project report.

1.2 Organisation of the Thesis

A thesis is made up of three main parts namely preliminary pages, text and references. These are arranged as in Table 1.1.
