

Upper left: A new wooden bridge crosses the historic entrance to the Lloyd dockyard, thus creating a continuous pedestrian connection and a new landmark within the urban context
 Lower left: The deck of the Lloyd Square rises nearly 20centimetres above the stone carpet
 Upper right: The "Lock Garden", shaped by the wind and facing the sea, has been formerly and still today an intimate meeting place
 Lower right: Timelessness has been the goal: materials are primarily durable and show regional expression
