

- nities for variety and vitality, 208–26; political art of, 150–51; potential alternative history for, 228–29; present state of, Scott Brown on, 77–80; primary tenet of, Taylor on, 286; privileged academic authority and access to empirical description of built environment as formal, cultural, or historical construct, 231–32; procedures most commonly associated with, 135; redefining for today, 76–77; as reformatorily conservative, 279–80, 283–84; relevance of, 188–89; role as conscience for design disciplines, 231; role in democratic planning process and, 249–51; role of, distinguished from that of architecture, 216; Scott Brown’s guidelines for, 80–81; Scott Brown’s personal view of, 61–87; second phase, fabric fixations, 144–46; Sert’s aspirations for, 45–46; Sitte as a founding father of, 140; skepticism about possibility of, viii; “special-interest” or “go-for-the-jugular,” 68; spheres of urbanistic action, 114–29; tastemakers in, 6; territorial claim of, 49; themes central to current debates around, ix–xiii; third phase, exporting Amerika, 146–49; transformation and isolation since Harvard’s Urban Design Conferences, 256–57, 260; trends and fashions since 1956, 66–68; as way of thinking/frame of mind, vii–viii, 54–56, 129–30, 207, 325
- “Urban Design” (Sert’s 1953 lecture), 17–18
- Urban Design as Public Policy* (Barnett), 116
- Urban Design Associates, 219
- Urban Design Conferences at Harvard (1956–70), 44–53; first (see First Urban Design Conference); second (1957), 30, 47–48; third (1959), 48–50; sixth, 50; seventh (1963), 24; eighth (1964), 50; ninth (1965), 51; tenth (1966), 51–53; architectural slant of, 305; Crawford’s critique of, 304–5; last (1970), 53
- urban designer(s): as architect-planner-administrator, 13; as orchestrator, 70, 71; skills needed to work with stakeholders, xii; societal expectations of, x–xii; as unheroic meliorists, Sert on, 42–44
- Urban Design Group (UDG): in New York City, 160–64; special districts designated by, 161–62
- Urban Design Research Institute (Mumbai), 190, 193–94
- urban districts: acquisition and development of projects within existing, 223, 224
- urban fragment, 133
- urbanism: everyday, 173, 190, 232, 234–35, 294, 321; Nolli map view of, 118, 126; Postmodern, 143; reduction to battle of styles, 180; restorative, 118–20; single-author chunks of coordinated, examples of, 214–15; suburbanism versus, 17–23; “traditional,” x–xii, 166; visionary, 126–27. See also landscape urbanism; Modernist urbanism; sustainable cities/communities
- urbanistic action: spheres of. See spheres of urbanistic action