

Figure 4.34 Photograph of improperly installed playground surface pads.

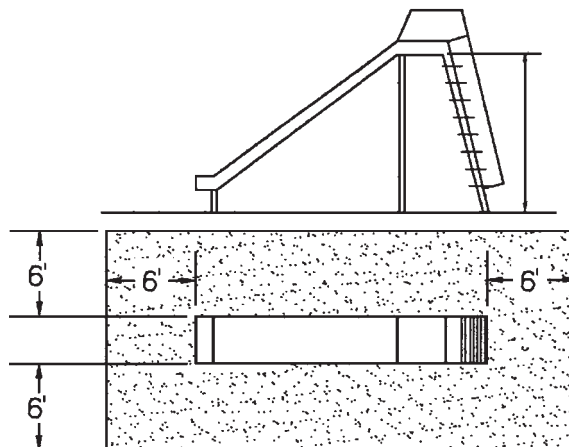

Figure 4.35 Fall zone for slide detail.

rate from streets and automobile traffic, the designated-lane system, and the road-sharing system. The dedicated bicycle path system has expanded significantly since the 1980s with the expanded rail-to-trail networks and the number of large residential developments incorporating bicycle paths. The lane system has also become popular in some suburban areas where wide streets